

School of Nursing

FAMILY NURSE PRACTITIONER

DNP Degree Program
Post Graduate APRN Certificate Program

Our Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP) program blends theoretical coursework with hands-on clinical experience to equip students with the knowledge and skills needed to excel in the dynamic field of family nursing practice.

WHY CHOOSE NMSU?

Comprehensive Curriculum

Designed to provide a solid foundation in advanced nursing theory, pathophysiology, pharmacology, and health assessment. Clinical practicum experiences in the third year allow students to apply their knowledge in real-world settings under the guidance of experienced preceptors.

Distance Education

Allows nurses to earn their DNP degree in their hometown. Didactic courses are delivered in a flexible, mostly asynchronous format, and clinical training is completed with nurse practitioners and physicians at your local healthcare centers.

Expert Faculty

Learn from experienced FNP and other nursing faculty that are dedicated to your success. With diverse expertise, they bring a wealth of knowledge and experience to the classroom.

Interprofessional Education

Engage in interprofessional education experiences, learning alongside professionals from mental health, public health, social work, counseling, and other disciplines. Cultivate teamwork skills essential for providing holistic, patient-centered care within interdisciplinary teams.

APPLICATIONS ARE NOW OPEN!

Career Opportunities

Graduates of our FNP program are well-prepared to pursue advanced practice roles in a variety of healthcare settings. Whether you aspire to work in a rural clinic, urban clinic, or specialty practice, our program will provide you with the skills and confidence to make a meaningful impact on the health and well-being of individuals and families in your community.

Contact us!

BE BOLD. Shape the Future.®
College of Health, Education, and Social Transformation
School of Nursing

NMSU SON Graduate Advising Office

575-646-3812

nursing@nmsu.edu

schoolofnursing.nmsu.edu

Embark on a transformative journey into the field of primary and preventative health care with the FNP program at the New Mexico State University School of Nursing.

The DNP-FNP program at NMSU has a special focus on integrated primary and mental health care. With opportunities for training in the area of substance use disorder prevention, evaluation and treatment. Our program maintains a strong focus on evidence-based practice, cultural competency, and leadership in a variety of primary care clinics and community health centers.

With specialized courses focusing on population health, health promotion, disease prevention, and management of common acute and chronic health conditions.

Focused course work in pediatrics and women's health compliment the general primary care courses. Student nurses go through years, learning alongside professionals from mental health, public health, social work, counseling, and other disciplines. They learn to cultivate teamwork skills essential for providing holistic, patient-centered care within interdisciplinary teams.

Apply today!

Take the first step toward advancing your career as a skilled and compassionate family nurse practitioner!

BE BOLD. Shape the Future.®
New Mexico State University

